R1: AM 4sc
R2: 4sc
R3: (1sc, 1inc)x2 (6)
R4-6: 6sc
When you finish R20, cut the thread and make a perfect closure.
Let me explain what a perfect closure is:

- After cutting the thread, pull it out and attach a tapestry needle.
- Skip a stitch and, in the next stitch, pass the tapestry needle under the chain that forms above the stitch.
- Then insert the tapestry needle just above the last stitch you made.

Whenever a perfect close is mentioned, follow these steps exactly.

R4: 4sc, 4dec, 4sc (12)

When you finish R4, it's important to place a button or other material that is the same size as the diameter achieved in R3. If you don't have a button of the right size, you can cut out a piece of plastic or even melt some silicone to create a similar base. Keep in mind that with a flat base on the legs, your camel will look much better and stay stable.

For each leg, fold the top as shown in the pictures, using your fingertips. Use the center of the puff stitches as a reference. Then insert the hook from the inside of the leg to the outside, at the point indicated in the picture. Start crocheting 7 single crochets, always taking one stitch from the leg and one from the body. Make sure that the puff stitches are always facing the front of the body.

At the end, there will be 7 points of separation between the front legs and 3 points of separation between the back legs. For a more detailed understanding, please access the link we have shared with the explanatory video.

"After finishing R7, make sure the legs are positioned correctly. If you notice that the low points look crooked, repeat the joining technique, but adjust the legs to bring them into the proper position. This step is important to ensure that the camel looks balanced and well-formed.

"The next round is very similar, but this time you will work the single crochets directly into the 7 single crochets that we left free on each leg. This means that you must skip the stitches used for the joins in the previous round. Make sure to always work into the next free stitch you find to maintain the continuity of the fabric.

R9-10: 52sc
R11: 9sc, 7c, skip 17sts, 16sc, 3sc joining tail, 7sc (42)
Make sure to leave 17 stitches free, as centered as possible on the front of the body, as we will use them later for the neck. If necessary, adjust the start of R11 by increasing or decreasing stitches to ensure the neck is centered. The same goes for the tail: it should line up over the three stitches separating the back legs.

The technique for joining the tail is exactly the same as you used for the legs, except that we will knit 3 stitches joining in R11 and another 3 stitches in R12. Always check that the position is correct.

Wires need to be placed in the back legs to give the camel stability. Use a wire and lightly stuff each side of the wire (just a little). Divide the wire into two equal parts: one for each leg. Half of the wire should be inserted into each leg, while the rest is bent towards the tail for extra strength. Secure the ends of the wire with a bit of hot glue.

This wire has a total length of 14 inches, I cut it in half (7 inches for each leg) and bent it again to reinforce it, resulting in a final size of 9 cm per leg. Fill around the wire, but only a small amount, just enough to shape the legs without losing stability. This step will help the legs look even and well defined. The excess that sticks up should be tucked inside the tail. For extra security, apply a little silicone to the tips of the wire before inserting them into the tail.

Stuff this area of the body, remembering that you can always add more stuffing before closing off, even in the neck area. Make sure to distribute the stuffing evenly to get a well-defined shape.

R20: (2pb, 1dis)x6 (18)
R21: (1pb, 1dis)x6 (12)
R22: 12pb

I recommend leaving the top of the body undone for now, in case you need to add more stuffing from the top later. However, you can easily add stuffing from the bottom as well. For now, just cut the thread and pull it out of the fabric.

Neck

Using wheat-colored thread, continue working on the stitches that we left free on the body, starting right at the corner.

R2: 24sc

Once you've finished R2, attach the wire. For each leg, I used a full 14-inch piece of wire, folded in half. The remaining end will extend into the neck and head area. If there's any excess wire, you can cut it off later.

Add a little stuffing to each leg to give shape and stability. Remember to also add stuffing to the neck as you progress through the knitting or at the end, depending on your preference.

R6: (3sc, 1dec)x4 (16)

When finished, cut the thread leaving enough length to make a perfect closure using a wool needle.

Also, close the hump of the body making sure it is well defined to give it a proper shape.

Start using Sand colored yarn
R1: MR 6sc
R2: 6inc (12)
R3: (3sc, 1inc)x3 (15)
R4-6: 15sc Change to wheat colored yarn in the last sc of R6

Every time you need to make a color change, follow these steps:

- Finish the last stitch of the round and pull out the yarn over slightly.
- Insert the hook through the center of the stitch, as shown in the picture.
- Draw the new color and start the next round.
- Before finishing this round, pull the strand of the previous color and secure it to the new color with a simple knot.
- Leave the strands inside the piece so that they become part of the filling.

I won't go into this explanation any further. From now on, whenever you make a color change, do it this way with the corresponding colors.

Place safety eyes between R10 and 11 with 8 stitches of separation.

Place 6mm safety eyes between R10 and R11, leaving 8 stitches between them. Make sure that the closure and the start of each round are at the bottom. For extra security, you can fix the eyes with heat (for example, by carefully applying a little fire). Remember to fill the amigurumi at the time that is most convenient for you.

Stuff the head and cut the yarn, leaving enough to fasten it off later. Pull the yarn out but do not fasten off the head yet. Before doing so, we will make the embroidered details, making sure that each stitch is secured from the back for greater security and cleanliness.

https://youtu.be/K8i5B1zifUI?t=558

The embroidered detail above the eye consists of just two simple stitches, using wheat-colored thread (the same one you used for the skin). Stitch from side to side of the eye, making sure they are symmetrical and clean.

Using only two strands of white thread (from a yarn that contains a total of 6 strands), embroider the following detail. This consists of a single stitch located at the bottom of the eye, more towards the back. Make sure it is delicate and well positioned.

Cut the strand, leaving enough to secure it with the starting strand and attach it to the head. Use the same hook to pull the strand back through the first single crochet you made; this will help close the ear a bit.

Attach the ears to the head between R14 and R15, leaving 6 points of separation between them and making sure that they are as centered as possible with the eyes. To join them, pass both strands towards the back and tie a firm knot. If you prefer, you can also glue them with a suitable adhesive.

Close the head using a tapestry needle, making sure it is well sealed to keep the shape and filling in place.

https://youtu.be/K8i5B1zifUI?t=1180

Using tan yarn, weave the strap. It is very important to start on the same side as shown in the picture. Pull out a loop, leaving a slightly long strand at the beginning, which you will later use to secure together with the one at the end.
Knit 50ch (or as many as you like) and, leaving about 9 sts in the other direction, slip stitch between R6 and R7. Make sure to pay attention to the pictures or refer to the video if necessary.
Leave a slip stitch unmade to complete the perfect closure with a tapestry needle. Pull the strand back to the back, along with the starting strand, and secure them together with a tight knot. Finally, hide both strands for a neat finish.

To attach the head to the neck, first cut off the excess wire.
Then, using a punch, create a hole in the center of the head, at the bottom, making sure that the head is centered. Adjust as many times as necessary to achieve a proper position.
Use a tapestry needle and only two strands of the same thread to attach the head to the collar with a neat seam. When sewing, only pick up the front strands of each stitch on the collar, making sure not to skip any. This will give a nice, even finish.

Using black, double-stranded sewing thread, embroider the nose. Basically, form a 'V' as centered as possible and then add a straight line down from the apex of the 'V'. If you need additional help, check out the video for a clear visual reference.

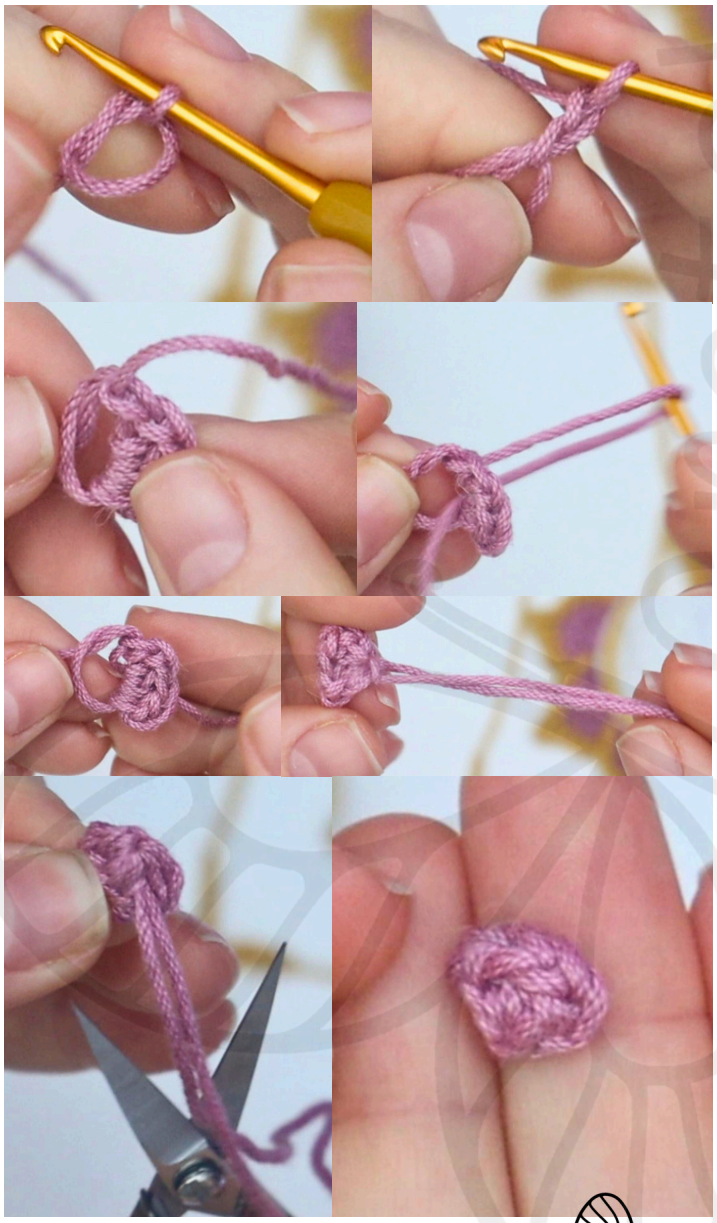
Before closing the magic ring, thread the final strand to the back through the inside of the ring. Then, close the magic ring and hide both strands neatly in the back of this small piece for a neat finish.



Attaching both pieces to the head is very simple. Pass each end of the gold piece to the back, inserting them as close as possible to each ear. Then, at the back, secure them with a firm knot and hide the strands. The rosewood piece only needs to be glued, and it's ready.
